Scope and Content Note

The series consists of copies of U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' so-called "Review of Report" which are detailed evaluations to determine the need or feasibility for federal participation in various proposed flood control projects throughout New York State. An individual report may, but does not necessarily, include maps and charts, specification bids, consultant contracts, memoranda of understanding, and legal opinions. The reports range from 1936-1960, although the largest number of reports date from 1940-1950.
