Overview of the Records

Repository:	New York State Archives
Summary:	The Casino Gambling Study Panel was established to make recommendations concerning the economic, social, and employment impact of casinos; the ways that casino gambling might be used for economic development; how the industry might be taxed, and its potential revenue; and if casinos should be publicly operated or privately operated under government supervision. The series consists of public hearing transcripts and written testimony; research studies and reports; and staff data files pertaining to taxation, regulations, economic impact, and regional unemployment.
