Administrative History

Paul Studenski was Professor of Economics at New York University and served as a fiscal consultant and advisor to numerous federal, state, and municipal agencies. He specialized in problems of public finance and administration and authored many works, most notably, Paul Studenski and Herman E. Krooss, "Financial History of the United States: Fiscal, Monetary, Banking, and Tariff, Including Financial Administration and State and Local Finance" (New York: McGraw-Hill, 1952). In his role as consultant to the Division of the Budget, Studenski submitted memoranda on a wide variety of reports and proposals to the agency director.
